

Framing, Opportunity, Robustness, Convergence, Effectiveness

Broad-based Principles

- The nexus is a place where there is as much agreement – as there is dis-agreement
- Principles that provide:
 - Fundamental ‘norms’
 - Rules, or values which can enable drivers for joint solutions
 - Reduction of opposing factors

"I THINK YOU SHOULD BE MORE EXPLICIT HERE IN STEP TWO."

Operational by Nature

- Interventions need to be:
 - Flexible
 - Adaptive & responsive
 - Is there willingness to accept?

Indicators of success

- Approach delivered relative to scale linking cross-sectoral outcomes
- Sectors engaged in open dialogue to promote 'buy-in' for collaborative advantage
- Capacity and knowledge of (appropriate) partnership to act on opportunities

The framework

Framing

The framework

Framing

Opportunity:

What is the opportunity for joint action and how can this be encouraged?

The framework

Framing

Opportunity:

What is the opportunity for joint action and how can this be encouraged?

Robustness:

What is the capacity of the regulatory/incentive framework(s) to effectively control the different uses?

The framework

Framing

Opportunity:

What is the opportunity for joint action and how can this be encouraged?

Robustness:

What is the capacity of the regulatory/incentive framework(s) to effectively control the different uses?

Convergence:

Is there any coordination (within the sector – and between sectors) in prioritizing what is required?

The framework

Framing

Opportunity:

What is the opportunity for joint action and how can this be encouraged?

Robustness:

What is the capacity of the regulatory/incentive framework(s) to effectively control the different uses?

Convergence:

Is there any coordination (within the sector – and between sectors) in prioritizing what is required?

Effectiveness:

What is the effectiveness of a multi-sector approach?

The framework

Framing

Opportunity:

What is the opportunity for joint action and how can this be encouraged?

Robustness:

What is the capacity of the regulatory/incentive framework(s) to effectively control the different uses?

Convergence:

Is there any coordination (within the sector – and between sectors) in prioritizing what is required?

Effectiveness:

What is the effectiveness of a multi-sector approach?

Thank you!

More information:

www.waternexusolutions.org